As We Present:

“The Inside Look into Data Breach & Identify Theft?
Could it be coming from within?”

Mr. Jim Collard has more than 30 years' experience in successfully managing national and regional commercial credit operations will share with us his expertise on this very important topic that the entire nation is concerned about.

- An estimated 86 million records—including credit card and debit card numbers—were compromised, with Kmart, Home Depot, and Staples among the companies that saw the greatest data spillage.
- Did you know that many employees (35%) are willing to sell information?
- Many times, private data can be exposed simply because an employee doesn't know the dangers of a certain action.
- What can Credit Managers/Companies do to prevent this from happening?
- Human error is one of the most powerful drivers behind bad events in the workplace, and it's also very hard to work against.
- What are our responsibilities as Credit Managers in regards to preventing data breach and Identity Theft?
